

The Original Computer Camp

"The Leaders in Computer Education"

Why Computer Camps?

To most of us, summer camp means hiking, swimming, fishing, campfires, pine trees and wide open spaces. In recent years, however, something new has been added to the summer camp experience that is so beneficial that its effect is beginning to change the way children spend their summers.

Not surprisingly, it has something to do with computers — the most significant communications tool of the 20th century. In addition to providing all the healthy features of a well-managed, recreational wilderness camp, computer camps teach children all about computers and how to use them effectively.

Computer camps give youngsters the opportunity to expand their imaginations and to think logically. After twelve days of hands-on instruction, boys and girls return home with more than just memories of new friends or “the big one that got away.” They will have learned an important new literacy — the ability to communicate with a computer.

Why the Original Computer Camp?

Denison Bollay, founder of The Original Computer Camp.

As our name suggests, we are the originators of computer camping. For years we have been teaching 7 to 15 year-old children to program micro-computers. During that period, we have continued to modify, expand and improve our curriculum and teaching staff such that we now offer the finest youth computer training programs in the world.

For example, the Original Computer Camp was the first to offer the Apple LOGO program — two years before it was released to the public.

Our campers have consistently enjoyed from 4 to 6 hours a day of hands-on access to the latest generation of computers and software. Our experienced and qualified instructors give your youngsters all the important individual attention they need at this stage in their computer education. The low camper-to-staff ratio of 5:1 includes the full-time services of a camp nurse.

And, at each of our camps, a complete well-equipped recreational program led by certified camp directors provides a wholesome balance to our stimulating classroom sessions.

A Proven Curriculum...

Introduction to Microcomputing

This course is designed to teach the beginner the fundamentals of microcomputing. Campers will be introduced to the programming languages: LOGO and BASIC. We emphasize LOGO, a language developed for children at M.I.T., which allows the camper to learn powerful computing concepts using a series of colorful graphics to make learning fun.

Logo

At The Original Computer Camp, we demonstrate how LOGO is making quantum leaps towards helping humans make computers “think.” In addition, LOGO also has the capability of modeling complex structures, doing list processing and constructing advanced geometric designs.

Basic

This course, designed for the camper who has some experience with programming, will cover subroutines, linear structures, and advanced commands.

Pascal

Pascal is considered a high level language with many diverse applications in business and industrial programming. Our campers will learn the syntax of PASCAL, and gain experience with data structures.

Adventure/Arcade Game Writing

This course is one of our most popular attractions. Campers will write their own arcade game programs and gain valuable insight and skills through an activity that is both fun and challenging.

Plus Additional Courses in:

- Artificial Intelligence
- Graphics
- Electronics
- Robotics

With Camps Around The World!

Santa Barbara

Established in 1910 as a private preparatory school, Cate is a jewel on the Southern California coastline.

Visitors to Cate School have described the setting as "one of the most beautiful imaginable." Sitting astride 150 acres at the foot of the rugged Santa Ynez Mountains, this luxurious site features comfortable semi-private rooms, many with ocean views, and all the fun of living at a prestigious, well-endowed private school.

A variety of superb facilities are available to our Santa Barbara campers that are designed to promote personal growth and enjoyment including:

- Gymnasium/squash courts
- Three athletic fields and track
- Swimming pool
- Arts center/theatre

Located in the foothills, twelve miles south of Santa Barbara, California.

Hawaii

Our Hawaiian Camp is in the middle of everything: cattle ranching, the beaches, active volcanoes, and yes, even snow-capped mountains.

Cradled by rolling coastal foothills in the shadow of Mauna Kea and only minutes from the white sandy beaches and palm trees of the blue Pacific, "Hawaii" is our most exclusive location. Just outside the ranching town of Waimea, headquarters of the huge Parker Ranch, the 55-acre campus of the handsome Hawaii Preparatory Academy offers your camper many opportunities for exploration and discovery.

Facilities include:

- Comfortable semi-private accommodation
- Gymnasium with basketball/volleyball
- Tennis courts and playing fields for track, soccer, baseball and football

Located 2 miles north of Waimea on the Big Island of Hawaii.

Some of Our Campers Made the News!

"It was the greatest . . . so much more fun than regular summer camp. We had a bunch of things to do — horse-back riding, swimming, frisbee, football, volleyball and, of course, computer classes. We spent at least 4 hours a day in class working on computers."

Eric, age 13
San Diego Tribune

"I'm begging my parents. I wrote them and said I want to come back."

Andrew, age 11
Los Angeles Herald
Examiner

"In just two weeks, if you learned this much in school, it'd be a miracle."

Cindy, age 15
National Television Special

"When I grow up, the world will be using computers. So, it's better to learn while you're young."

Mark, age 9
NEWSWEEK

"I've learned to program and debug. I've learned PASCAL and BASIC, more about electronics and circuitry and how to operate different kinds of computers."

Greg, age 12
Wall Street Journal
